About the Programme

For practitioners and litigants, disputes surrounding IP are traditionally dealt with by the Courts or before the respective IP Registrars. With the new Intellectual Property (Dispute Resolution) Act coming into force in 2019, IP disputes are now definitively arbitrable.

It is timely to consider mediation's place in the resolution of IP disputes. Is the mediation of IP disputes any different from the mediation of any other type of disputes?

This webinar aims to:

- Discuss the practical realities and examples of how pure IP disputes can be resolved to the benefit of all parties, through time and cost effective mediation.
- Provide an overview on the mediation process, the advent of online mediation and the commencement of the Singapore Convention on Mediation. Explore how these impact a party's or counsel's consideration in selecting a most appropriate dispute resolution mechanism for your IP disputes.
- Provide an overview of WIPO Mediation for IP and technology disputes, including the WIPO Arbitration and Mediation Center's recent experience regarding the use of technology for meetings and hearings and the referral to mediation of IP cases pending before national courts and the Intellectual Property Office of Singapore.

Speakers' Profile

Meryl Koh – Director, Drew & Napier LLC

Meryl Koh is a Director in the Intellectual Property (IP) and Dispute Resolution departments in Drew & Napier.

Meryl has been repeatedly named as a Next Generation Lawyer in IP by Legal 500 and is a recommended lawyer for dispute resolution. Meryl was most recently touted by IAM Patent 1000 to be the lawyer “to have on speed dial” when a complex IP issue arises and was listed as one of the top 40 under 40 lawyers in Asia by Asian Legal Business in 2019. She was praised for being “simply first rate”, and one who “makes it a point to acquire a complete mastery of the case... no matter how complex.”

Meryl has acted for high profile clients in many notable disputes, including a complex patent infringement matter for Ila Technologies involving grown diamond technology as well as various trademark disputes for TWG Tea, a luxury tea brand, and advises blue-chip tech companies and SMEs on digital IP.

Notwithstanding the highly contentious nature of her IP and general litigation practice, Meryl firmly believes that the practical benefits of mediation cannot be gainsaid and she has assisted many clients resolve their differences through mediation.

Meryl is an expert panellist for WIPO’s Fast-Track Disputes, and a member of the International Association for the Protection of Intellectual Property (AIPPI) Singapore Group, Inter-Pacific Bar Association, Singapore Law Society and Academy of Law. She is also a fellow of the Singapore Institute of Arbitrators.
